

AFLC ALASKA MISSION UPDATES

• Hilltop Christian Fellowship

Hilltop has been without a Pastor for four years and counting now. The church has been blessed to have visiting pastors fill in the pulpit over the years, and we are thankful for their willingness to take time to write and preach sermons! However, we long for the day to have a Pastor accept the call to come up here. To not only preach but also have the time to come alongside and do life with the people up here. To share in all of the ministry opportunities outside the pulpit as well. Would you join us in our prayer for a pastor to come up for two years or more? The harvest is plentiful.

• Current Missionaries in AK

Joshua Fish, serves as the Director of Maintenance and assists with all the flying needs in AK. He has also stepped in to help with leading Bible studies and leading Sunday services when he is able while we wait on God's provision of a pastor to serve in AK. Heather Hansen has served as a missionary in Alaska since 2020, faithfully supporting the mission through outreach, education, and community involvement. Maggie Johnson serves as the Station Manager for KAKN and its sister stations, sharing the Gospel across southwest Alaska through Christian radio ministry.

• The Net

The volunteers this past year were great! Some even spoke Spanish which was a blessing to have less of a language barrier to the cannery workers. We were able to raise funds from the rummage sale to send 10 kids to a nearby Bible Camp. Lots of people bought supplies for the Net making it so we could offer lots of muffins, cookies and cupcakes!

• KAKN Radio

The Lees moved south this last fall, and Maggie Johnson took on the role of station manager. Dave Perkins also moved into the remote role of station director, in addition to doing IT. KAKN has been able to broadcast lots of basketball games, produce a new short radio program called Wisdom Moments, and even held a Christmas event this year where people could come to the station to record Christmas greetings.

• F.L.A.P.S.

Mission Aviation Training Academy sent up a group in February to help with inspections of the planes. FLAPS sent up a crew in September to do inspections of the other plane. Thank the Lord for another year of safe flights and reliable airplanes!

• VBS

We were able to make it to 8 different villages this past year. Some for a week, or a day and some to drop off materials for them to distribute. We had people from Washington, Kentucky and Minnesota come to teach VBS for various lengths of time. 2025 was a great year of support for the ministry, both financially and prayerfully!

• Quilts

The AK Mission has been blessed to have so many quilters that are talented and willing to share their blessings with us. We were able to introduce a quilter to a local who loves to tell people about the quilts and about some of the people she has given a quilt to. We were also able to give quilts to the VBS villages of Manokotak and Kokhanok. As well as being able to give to a local family whose house burned down. Those left homeless from the Typhoon were also able to be blessed. We are thankful that we have been able to freely give due to the generosity of others. When people have been looking we've always been able to say we have some!

Bringing Christ's message of saving grace to people in Alaskan villages through congregational worship, radio, and aviation.
